I. INTRODUCTION ..... 1

II. STANDARD FOR DECIDING A RULE 56, FRCP MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT ..... 3

III. UNDISPUTED MATERIAL FACTS ..... 3

IV. ARGUMENT ..... 4

    A. The Lummi II and Fort Peck Housing III Decisions Are Dispositive and Require an Order Prohibiting HUD from Attempting to Recapture Funds Already Spent, as Here, on Affordable Housing Activities and from Reducing Future Grant Funding by Taking Away Funds Earmarked for Affordable Housing Activities since All Funds Awarded By HUD Have Already Been Expended by the TMHA on Affordable Housing Activities ..... 4

    B. Apart from Lummi II and Fort Peck III, HUD's Rationale Offered to Justify Recapturing TMHA's Funds Already Expended on Affordable Housing Activities Is Wanting; Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment Should Be Granted on These Additional Grounds on These Additional Grounds ..... 7

        1. HUD Does Not Have Inherent Authority to Recapture Funds in this Case ..... 7

        2. The Recapture Here Is Not for a Grant Adjustment but for Post-grant Adjustments Thereby Subjecting HUD to Title IV Limitations ..... 9

        3. Title IV of NAHASDA Lays out a Comprehensive Remedial Scheme Which Requires a Hearing and Finding of Substantial Noncompliance in this Case Before HUD May Recapture, Reduce or Adjust Grant Funds ..... 11

            a. 25 USC § 4161(a) Applies Whenever HUD Attempts to Recapture or Adjust Grant Funds That Have Been Awarded and Requires a Hearing and Finding of Substantial Noncompliance in this Case. It Also Bars the Recapture of Funds Expended on Affordable Housing Activities ..... 13

            b. 25 USC §4165 Applies Whenever HUD Attempts to Recapture or Adjust Grant Funds That Have Been Awarded and Requires a Hearing and Finding of Substantial Noncompliance in this Case ..... 15

        4. NAHASDA Assigns a Trust Responsibility to HUD That it must Observe When Administering to Tribal Housing Needs ..... 17

        5. The Denial of a Hearing Was Prejudicial to the TMHA ..... 19

7. HUD's Arguments In Support of Its Use of 24 CFR § 1000.318 Do Not Pass Muster . . . . . 22

    a. HUD's Reliance Upon Fort Peck II Is Misplaced . . . . . 23

    b. The NAHASDA Reauthorization Act Substantively Changed, Rather Than Merely "Clarified," NAHASDA's Formula Allocation Provision . . . . . 24

    c. HUD's Argument That The Pre-Amendment Version of the Formula Allocation Provision Unambiguously Required the FCAS Reductions Under 24 CFR § 1000.318(a) Is Wrong. . . . . 25

8. HUD Violated The Pre-2008 Version of NAHASDA, 24 CFR § 1000.318 and the APA, By Excluding and Reducing Funding for Units That Were Not Actually Lost By Conveyance to a Third Party, Demolition or Otherwise. . . . . 27

9. 24 CFR § 1000.318 is Impermissibly Vague. . . . . 29

P.L. 110-411 .....	25
--------------------	----

1 Plaintiff, the Housing Authority of the Te-Moak Tribe of Western Shoshone Indians of 2 Nevada (TMHA), submits this brief in Opposition to the defendants' (collectively, HUD) Cross 3 Motion for Summary Judgment and in Reply to HUD's Opposition to the plaintiff's Motion for 4 Summary Judgment.

5 I. INTRODUCTION

6 While it is true that HUD's treatment of the 500 Tribes receiving Native American 7 Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996, 25 USC §§ 4101, et. seq., 8 ("NAHASDA"), funding is under siege because of HUD's global attempt to recapture funds it 9 claims were overpaid the Tribal Housing Authorities or Tribally Designated Housing Entities 10 ("TDHEs"), at issue in this case is the unlawful treatment accorded the TMHA by HUD. Here, 11 HUD recaptured out of the TMHA's funds earmarked for use on affordable housing activities, the 12 sum of One Hundred Nineteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-two Dollars ($119,182). HUD 13 Brief (HB) p., 10; 22-26. HUD also seeks to recapture additional funds in the amount of Six 14 Hundred Twenty-four Thousand One Hundred Sixty-five Dollars ($624,165), HB p., 13; 4-5, from 15 the funds intended for affordable housing activities, since the TMHA has no reserve of HUD 16 funds available as a source of recapture that were not used for affordable housing activities. Every 17 penny taken or to be taken by HUD, should it be permitted to do so, reduces the funds the TMHA 18 will have available to satisfy current affordable housing needs. This will continue until HUD 19 believes it has been fully repaid, if HUD has its way.

20 HUD's recapture and HUD's attempts to recapture are undertaken, furthermore, without 21 regard to the mechanism set forth in 25 USC §§ 4161 and 4165 and related Federal Regulations.
22 HUD has proceeded and intends to proceed, therefore, without according the TMHA notice and 23 the reasonable opportunity to be heard by an impartial tribunal before determining the amount of 24 the exactions imposed upon TMHA funding under NAHASDA. Furthermore, HUD is proceeding 25 without according the TMHA an informal meeting with HUD officials, and HUD is proceeding 26 without any finding of substantial non-compliance by the TMHA with some provision of 27 NAHASDA before recapturing funds. HUD has recaptured and will continue to extract funds 28 also, even though there has been no finding that the funds recaptured or pursued were expended

1 on activities other than for affordable housing activities under NAHASDA.

2 This case tracks Lummi Tribe of the Lummi Nation, et. al. v. The United States, ___
3 Fed.Cl. ___, 2012 WL 3597437 (Fed.Cl., 8/21/2012). (Lummi II). Under the same circumstances 4 extant here, the Court said the question for resolution was: "Is HUD permitted to recover grant
5 funds through an administrative offset, without following the procedures set forth in NAHASDA, 6 once those grant funds have been disbursed on affordable housing activities?" Lummi, II, supra at 7 *2. The corollary to this question is the disposition of housing units funded prior to the enactment 8 of NAHASDA by HUD and which were in existence as of September 30, 1997, when NAHASDA 9 became effective. At issue is the efficacy of 25 CFR § 1000.318. Should it permit HUD to 10 categorically exclude units from consideration when determining funding levels, including those 11 still owned and operated by the TMHA? Couched alternatively, when does the TMHA lose the 12 right to own and operate or maintain a unit for purposes of inclusion in the FCAS?

13 Addressing the first issue, the TMHA asserts that Title IV of NAHASDA, 25 USC §§ 14 4161-4168, requires an answer in the negative on this question. Title IV of NAHASDA and its 15 corresponding regulations bar the summary exactions attempted by HUD. For the second issue, 16 the TMHA asserts that categorical exclusions as a basis for funding levels of the pre-NAHASDA 17 units based upon HUD's determination that the units should have been conveyed upon expiration 18 of the period of occupancy of the Mutual Help and Occupancy Agreements ("MHOAs") under 19 which the TMHA and eligible Indian families intend to convey the home to the Tribal homebuyer, 20 are arbitrary and capricious. They afford no basis for eliminating units from the (FCAS) when 21 determining need and, thus, funding for the TMHA.

22 HUD strenuously disagrees. HUD claims in main that:

23 1. HUD has a common law right to recover funds it believes are overpayments and, 24 therefore, HUD may disregard or circumvent the procedures in NAHASDA and proceed with its 25 own remedies. HUD would render nugatory Title IV of NAHASDA.

26 2. Similarly, the recapture of funds is not an audit issue and, therefore, the protections 27 accorded the TMHA in Title IV of NAHASDA may be disregarded.

28 3. HUD has no trust responsibility towards Tribes under NAHASDA that would

1 accordingly otherwise direct its interpretation of NAHASDA.

2 4. HUD is immune from suit to seek repayment of the funds which have already been 3 recaptured by HUD.

4 5. The 10th Circuit has already determined that the 2008 Amendments to NAHASDA, 5 are a mere clarification of the preexisting statute in a way that affirms the interpretation HUD 6 gives to 25 CFR § 1000.318.

7 There are also subsets to these arguments offered by HUD to justify its attempt to avoid 8 Title IV when trying to recapture TMHA funds. In sum, however, HUD believes it may proceed 9 unfettered by Title IV of NAHASDA, to accomplish the recapture of funds it has initiated here.
10 As elucidated further below, Title IV of NAHASDA applies to bar HUD's recapture efforts.

11 II. STANDARD FOR DECIDING A RULE 56, FRCP MOTION FOR 12 SUMMARY JUDGMENT

13 There is no dispute between the parties about the universal standard for deciding a motion 14 for summary judgment under Rule 56, FRCP. The TMHA would only add, here, that the only 15 facts which the Court need concern itself with are those material to the legal issues before the 16 Court. See, Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 106 S.Ct. 2505 (1986). All other facts fall by the 17 wayside, whether or not disputed.

18 Since the TMHA is capable of showing that there is no genuine dispute over the facts 19 material to the legal issues of this dispute, summary judgment may providently be granted.

20 III. UNDISPUTED MATERIAL FACTS

21 The following material and controlling facts are undisputed:

22 a) HUD never provided the TMHA with notice and an opportunity to be heard before 23 an impartial decision maker as prescribed by 24 CFR Part 26, Lummi II and Fort Peck III.

24 b) There was no finding in this dispute between the HUD and the TMHA of 25 substantial non-compliance by the TMHA with a provision of NAHASDA.

26 c) There was, accordingly, no finding by HUD that the funds recaptured by HUD 27 were expended on activities other than affordable housing activities under NAHASDA.

28 d) The funds already recaptured by HUD, the sum of One Hundred Nineteen

1 Thousand One Hundred Eighty-two Dollars ($119,182), represent funds that were expended on 2 affordable housing activities according to NAHASDA.

3 e) The funds to be recaptured by HUD the sum of Six Hundred Twenty-four 4 Thousand One Hundred Sixty-five Dollars ($624,165), will be extracted from future grants to the 5 TMHA because all funds awarded the TMHA by HUD at issue here were already expended by the 6 TMHA as affordable housing activities under NAHASDA, including, this sum.

7 f) There is, therefore, no reserve of unexpended or unused funds for HUD to draw 8 upon to recapture the overpayments it claims it is due from the TMHA.

9 That there is no genuine dispute over any of these material facts as evident from both the 10 HUD briefing before the Court and the record supplied by HUD. Both are devoid of any evidence 11 to the contrary and indeed, HUD's defense is that a hearing before an impartial hearing officer is 12 unnecessary because HUD has inherent authority, apart from 25 USC §§ 4161 and 4165 to 13 recapture funds. In addition, it is clear there is no dispute over any of these material facts as 14 shown in the affidavits of Brady, Piffero and Cassadore, accompanying this pleading.

15 IV. ARGUMENT

16 A. The Lummi II and Fort Peck Housing III Decisions Are Dispositive and 17 Require an Order Prohibiting HUD from Attempting to Recapture Funds 18 Already Spent, as Here, on Affordable Housing Activities and from Reducing 19 Future Grant Funding by Taking Away Funds Earmarked for Affordable 20 Housing Activities since All Funds Awarded By HUD Have Already Been 21 Expended by the TMHA on Affordable Housing Activities

22 The Court and parties now have the benefit of two decisions that confront HUD and 23 dispose of its arguments here. Lummi II, cited, supra, is one of the two cases. The other is Fort
24 Peck Housing Authority v. United States Department of Housing and Urban Development, 2012 25 WL 3778299 (D. Colo., 8/31/2012) (Fort Peck III). In both cases, HUD's recapture of 26 NAHASDA funds came in the wake of the OIG audit of tribal housing authorities. HB p., 6; 16-27 21. The same unilateral and categorical actions of HUD challenged here were taken by HUD in 28 Lummi II and Fort Peck III, as any fair review of those cases reveal. The same arguments which HUD put forth in this case to justify its actions were also argued in Lummi II and Fort Peck III.
HUD's arguments were clearly also found wanting by the Courts in both cases.

1           Thus, according to Lummi II and Fort Peck III, Title IV of NAHASDA (the provisions of 2 25 USC §§ 4161 and 4165 and corresponding regulations) governs any attempt, as here, to 3 recapture funds which have already been awarded, distributed and spent by a housing authority.
4 Under both 25 USC §§ 4161 and 4165, notice and an opportunity to be heard before an impartial 5 hearing officer must be afforded. In Lummi II, in particular, while holding that the procedural 6 safeguards of 25 U.S. C. § 4161 are not wholesale incorporated directly into 25 USC § 4165, the 7 Court further held that the statute stands on its own for the requirement that HUD must, as here, in 8 the face of audit adjustments, according to 24 CFR § 1000.532, provide tribal housing authorities
9 notice and the opportunity to be heard before HUD may attempt to recapture funds. 24 CFR 10 1000.532 governs recapture attempts by HUD for funds already awarded and spent by the 11 recipient. Lummi II, supra at *9, *11.

12           Correspondingly, HUD's theory that it has a common law right to recoup funds from 13 housing authorities, circumventing the requirements of Title IV, was rejected in Lummi II.
14 Furthermore, Lummi II recognized that HUD has a trust responsibility and must act as a fiduciary 15 towards a Tribe when administering NAHASDA grant funds. Id. at *10. Finally, by reason of the 16 determination that Title IV applies to HUD's attempt to recapture funds from Tribal housing 17 authorities, these cases also stand for the proposition that the limitations on recapture apply, even 18 after a hearing has been conducted. Thus, HUD may not recapture funds where the funds were 19 expended on affordable housing activities and where the recapture would result in a corresponding 20 reduction in the availability of funds to be spent on affordable housing activities. See, Ibid, and 24 21 CFR § 1000.532(a). See also, 25 USC § 4161(1)(B).

22           Fort Peck III added that 24 CFR § 1000.318 and its consort, Guidance 98-18, are an 23 arbitrary and capricious abuse of power by HUD, particularly with respect to housing units which 24 have not been conveyed at the time HUD is seeking a categorical disallowance of their inclusion
25 in the number of units used to determine funding under NAHASDA. Such categorical exclusions 26 impermissibly divorce HUD funding from TMHA's housing needs. Fort Peck III, supra at *4.
27 Neither the regulation nor the Guidance can be used to circumvent Title IV of NAHASDA.

28           Therefore, should the Court be inclined to follow either Lummi II or Fort Peck III, they are

1 dispositive of HUD's position and fatal to it in this case. First, they make clear that the remedies
2 of Title IV of NAHASDA govern HUD's options when seeking to recapture funds once the grant
3 award has been made and the funds from the grant expended. Then, the undisputed facts show 4 that HUD has never cited the TMHA for the use of funds outside of affordable housing activities.
5 See, the entire HUD Brief and record herein. Nothing of the sort is mentioned in either instance.
6 See also, affidavits of Brady, ¶¶ 6-10, Cassadore, ¶¶ 6-10 and Piffero, ¶¶ 6-10. Also, the actual 7 recapture of the sum of One Hundred Nineteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-two Dollars 8 ($119,182), represents the recapture of funds already expended on affordable housing activities.
9 Therefore, recapture contravenes 25 USC § 4161(a)(1)(B) which limits recapture to an amount 10 "...equal to the amount of such payments which were not expended in accordance with this 11 chapter."

12 Furthermore, the facts are beyond dispute that if the funds are to be recaptured in the 13 future, HUD will be recapturing in derogation of 24 CFR § 1000.532, funds that have already 14 been expended on affordable housing. See, affidavits of Brady, ¶¶ 6-10, Piffero, ¶¶ 4, 5, 6 and 15 Cassadore, ¶¶ 6-10. HUD will also be improperly taking funds earmarked to be expended on 16 affordable housing activities, because all funds sought to be recaptured have already been 17 expended on affordable housing activities and, therefore, they may not be deducted from future
18 assistance provided on behalf of an Indian tribe. See, Lummi II, supra at *10; see also, 24 CFR § 19 1000.532(a).

20 Based upon Lummi II, Fort Peck III and because the material facts are not in dispute, 21 summary judgment may enter for the TMHA. The funds recaptured were spent on affordable 22 housing activities. All TMHA HUD funds have been spent on affordable housing activities.
23 There is no reserve of funds from which to repay HUD in the future. Any funds taken from the 24 TMHA by HUD to recapture for overpayments would take away from funds earmarked to be spent 25 on further affordable housing activities. Recapture will amount to a deduct from future assistance 26 that would otherwise be devoted by the TMHA to affordable housing activities. See, affidavits of 27 Brady, ¶ 6, Piffero, ¶ 5, and Cassadore, ¶ 6.

28 This is not to detract from HUD's failure to follow the procedures of 25 USC §§ 4161 and

1 4165. At the end of the day, however, even if an overpayment is shown, HUD would nevertheless 2 be recapturing funds spent on affordable housing activities in accordance with NAHASDA. In the 3 future, HUD would be taking from funds earmarked for expenditure on affordable housing 4 activities in accordance with NAHASDA. Neither of these is HUD permitted to do. The 5 overpayment exacted from the TMHA should be returned to the TMHA by HUD and HUD should 6 be prohibited from the pursuit of the additional recapture efforts.

7 B. Apart from Lummi II and Fort Peck III, HUD's Rationale Offered to Justify 8 Recapturing TMHA's Funds Already Expended on Affordable Housing 9 Activities Is Wanting; Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment Should Be 10 Granted on These Additional Grounds on These Additional Grounds

11 Should the Court require additional rationale, however, for the conclusions reached by the 12 Courts in Lummi II and Fort Peck III, further elucidation is provided.

13 1. HUD Does Not Have Inherent Authority to Recapture Funds in this 14 Case

15 HUD claims "inherent power" to recapture NAHASDA funding which HUD asserts 16 trumps the limitations on recapture contained within NAHASDA and its implementing 17 regulations. See, HB pp., 22-27. HUD is mistaken.

18 HUD lays claim to "inherent power" argument relying upon United States v. Wurts, 303 19 U.S. 414, 416 (1938), Grand Trunk Western Ry. Co. v. United States, 252 U.S. 112, 117 (1920);
20 and United States v. Munsey Trust Co., 332 U.S. 234, 236 (1947). None of these cases support 21 HUD's claim to the inherent power of recapture. Instead, they stand for the mundane proposition 22 that the government retains the inherent authority to bring a civil action in Federal court to recover 23 funds that were paid by "mistake," through the common law cause of "unjust enrichment," absent 24 statutory language to the contrary. See, Wurts, supra, at 415-416.

25 Unlike Wurts, Congress has foreclosed HUD's inherent authority "through the 26 establishment of a comprehensive regulatory program supervised by an expert administrative 27 agency." City of Milwaukee v. Illinois and Michigan, 451 U.S. 304, 317 (1981). Therefore, "it is 28 for Congress, not federal courts, to articulate the appropriate standards to be applied as a matter of federal law." Id; accord, Am. Elec. Power Co. v. Connecticut, 131 S.Ct. 2527, 2537 (2011) ("[I]t

1 is primarily the office of Congress, not the federal courts, to prescribe national policy in areas of 2 special federal interest.""). As the Court in Wurts acknowledged, the inherent authority to recover 3 funds erroneously paid can be limited by Congress. Wurts, supra at 415-416. In this case, any 4 inherent authority HUD might enjoy to recapture funds has been limited by the comprehensive 5 remedial scheme of Title IV of NAHASDA, 25 USC §§ 4161-4168.

6 HUD also misconstrues and inflates the inherent authority recognized in Wurts by 7 suggesting that the United States' right to file a civil claim also gives HUD the inherent right, 8 without statutory authority, to bypass the court system and simply take money from the TMHA by 9 administrative fiat. There is no such "inherent" authority—any authority to recover funds by 10 purely administrative means must come from express delegation of that authority from Congress, 11 in a statute. Am. Bus. Ass. v. Slater, 231 F.3d 1, 5 (D.C. Cir. 2000) (agency's authority to bring a 12 civil action does not equate to authority to take money by administrative sanction; "civil action 13 provision" "actually undermines" the agency's argument to the contrary).

14 HUD's reliance on United States v. Texas, 507 U.S. 529 (1993) is also unavailing. In 15 Texas, the Court held that the Debt Collection Act of 1982 did not abrogate the government's 16 common law right to collect pre-judgment interest. Texas, supra, at 530. Again, this case does not 17 involve any "inherent right" to assess monetary liability administratively. The case simply 18 reaffirms that the United States has a common law right to prejudgment interest if it files a civil 19 claim that a court ultimately reduces to a judgment.

20 An agency's authority is shaped by what Congress has set forth by statute, in this case 21 NAHASDA. Am. Bus, supra, at 4 (statute's enumerated remedies reveal Congress' unambiguous 22 intent that such remedies be exclusive, and "consequent intent to deny agencies the power to 23 authorize supplementary monetary relief."). The inherent authority rule of Wurts and its progeny, 24 to the extent it applies at all in a non-civil action context, is still limited by the rule that Congress 25 may limit an Agency's remedial authority by a comprehensive remedial scheme that defines the 26 Agencies authority to act:

27 Where Congress has provided a comprehensive statutory scheme of remedies . . .
28 the interpretive canon of expressio unius est exclusio alterius applies. See Alexander v. Sandoval, 532 U.S. 275, 290, 121 S.Ct. 1511, 1521-22, 149 L. Ed. 2d

1 517 (2001) ("The express provision of one method of enforcing a substantive rule 2 suggests that Congress intended to preclude others."); Transamerica Mortg.
 3 Advisors, Inc. v. Lewis, 444 U.S. 11, 19, 100 S.Ct. 242, 247, 62 L. Ed. 2d 146 4 (1979) ("[I]t is an elemental canon of statutory construction that where a statute expressly provides a particular remedy or remedies, a court must be chary of reading others into it.").

5 Christ v. Ben. Corp., 547 F.3d 1292, 1298 (11th Cir. 2008).

6 Thus, a remedy cannot be implied under Titles I-III of NAHASDA outside comprehensive 7 provisions and the express parameters of Title IV. HUDs' reliance on 25 USC §§ 4151 - 4152<sup>1</sup> to 8 support its notion of some independent authority to adjust or reduce TMHA's grant without 9 complying with the remedies laid out in Title IV must be rejected.

10 2. The Recapture Here Is Not for a Grant Adjustment but for Post-grant 11 Adjustments Thereby Subjecting HUD to Title IV Limitations

12 Under 25 USC § 4151, "allocat[i]ons" are made on a fiscal year basis. The allocation of 13 funds is made "each year," with that allocation occurring "as expeditiously as practicable." 24 14 CFR § 1000.56. Once the grants have been disbursed pursuant to the annual allocation process, 15 24 CFR § 1000.60 makes it clear that any post-grant award effort to "prevent improper 16 expenditure of funds already disbursed to a recipient" must be done:

17 [i]n accordance with the standards and remedies contained in §1000.538 [to wit, 18 Title IV] relating to substantial noncompliance...In taking this action, HUD shall 19 comply with all appropriate procedures, appeals and hearing rights prescribed elsewhere in this part. Id. (emphasis added).

20 HUD cannot seriously argue that funds over allocated and dispersed in violation of 24 CFR 21 §1000.318 are not improperly expended under 24 CFR § 1000.60. If a TDHE receives and spends 22 more funds than it is entitled to under 25 USC § 4152 and 24 CFR § 1000.318, then it obviously 23 has not spent the funds in accordance with NAHASDA. Thus, HUD's own regulation, a 24 regulation conspicuously ignored in HUD's pleadings, draws a clear distinction between the initial 25 "allocation" of grant funds and any later action to recoup funds erroneously included in the 26 recipient's initial allocation.

27
 28 <sup>1</sup>Sections 4151 and 4152 are part of Title III of NAHASDA entitled "Allocation and Grant Amounts."

1 This same distinction was drawn in City of Kansas City v. U.S. H.U.D., 861 F.2d 739 2 (D.C. Cir. 1988) ("Kansas City"). There, the Court, dealing with nearly identical counterparts to 3 25 USC §§ 4161 and 4165, noted that there is a fundamental distinction between adjustments 4 made at the initial stage of a grant award, and withholdings or recaptures made after the grant is 5 awarded. The former could occur without a hearing and finding of substantial noncompliance; the 6 latter could not. Id. at 743. The reasons are obvious. As here, years after a grant is made, the 7 recipient may have already spent it, or at least committed funds in reliance on it. Id. at 745-746.
8 See also, City of Boston v. HUD, 898 F.2d 828, 833 (1st Cir. 1990). In a nutshell, grabbing back 9 funds already spent or obligated is a fundamentally different proposition than computing the initial 10 amount of a grant pursuant to NAHASDA Title III.

11 Furthermore, the plain language of NAHASDA is distorted if HUD were allowed to 12 contend that NAHASDA does not prohibit HUD from taking any actions to recover overfunding 13 in cases HUD determines do not constitute substantial noncompliance, HB pp., 25-27, and,
14 therefore, HUD is free to administratively recover funds outside the parameters of Sections 4161 15 and 4165. Such an argument should not be countenanced since it is fundamental that a federal 16 agency has only those powers which have been conferred upon it by Congress. See, American 17 Bus., supra, at 8 ("were courts to presume a delegation of power absent an express withholding of 18 such power, agencies would enjoy virtually limitless hegemony, a result plainly out of keeping 19 with...the Constitution.") (emphasis in original); Louisiana Pub. Ser. Comm'n. v. FCC, 476 U.S.
20 355, 374 (1986) ("an agency literally has no power to act...unless and until Congress confers 21 power upon it."). Defendants' "inherent power" argument turns this principle upside down.

22 Moreover, such an argument is inconsistent with HUD's previous concession on this point 23 during negotiated rulemaking. HUD originally proposed to allow grant recaptures without a 24 hearing under then 25 USC § 4165(c). See, 62 Fed. Reg. §§ 35718, 35726 (July 2, 1997). But in 25 response to overwhelming Tribal opposition, HUD agreed, in the final rule, to require a hearing in 26 all cases of grant recoupment--whether under §4161 or §4165. See, 63 Fed. Reg. §§ 12334, 12347
27 (March 12, 1998). HUD's attempt to turn a regulation intended to make the hearing requirement 28 universal into a limitation on a Tribes' hearing rights, and the accompanying right to be free of 1 funding reductions or adjustments, absent the required finding of substantial noncompliance, 2 ignores both the history and purpose of Congress' intent when enacting Title IV.

3 3. Title IV of NAHASDA Lays out a Comprehensive Remedial Scheme Which 4 Requires a Hearing and Finding of Substantial Noncompliance in this Case
 5 Before HUD May Recapture, Reduce or Adjust Grant Funds

6 Titles I-III of NAHASDA contain the NAHASDA's substantive provisions, but they contain 7 no provisions providing for the enforcement of those substantive requirements.<sup>2</sup> That is the job of 8 Title IV, which provides a comprehensive suite of remedies—administrative and judicial—for any 9 violation of "any provision of this Act." 25 USC § 4161(a).

10 HUD's attempt to infer from Titles I-III the power to summarily enforce those titles and their 11 implementing regulations (in this case, 24 CFR § 1000.318) without regard to the procedural 12 protections of Title IV, including the required finding of "substantial noncompliance," reduces Title 13 IV to a dead letter. HUD would rarely invoke either Section 4161 or Section 4165, because both 14 contain the bothersome sort of procedural requirements that the court in Kansas City noted HUD 15 has been historically loathe to follow. See, Kansas City, supra, at 741. ("[In] the 13 years since the 16 [public housing equivalent of §405 of NAHASDA] has been in existence, the Secretary has never 17 initiated [those hearing] procedures against any grant recipient." (emphasis in original)). HUD 18 would simply claim that it was following its own "duty" to comply with Titles I-III, thereby 19 absolving itself of any requirement to provide any procedural protections to the recipient. Such a 20 position leads to the anomalous result that violators would have greater protection under the statutes 21 than those in compliance, and yet both suffer the same sanction of recapture, except the violators 22 get greater protection than those who are in compliance. This result makes no sense.

23 Those procedural protections found in Title IV provide a comprehensive array of both 24 sanctions and procedural safeguards including the following:

 26
 27 <sup>2</sup>Section 209 of NAHASDA (25 USC § 4139) does contain a lone enforcement provision dealing 28 with using grant money for affordable housing activities; however, that section merely provides that a person violating a substantive standard will be dealt with under § 4161(a).

1 administratively recapturing misspent revenues under section 4161, if the recipient is 2 guilty of "substantial noncompliance,"<sup>3</sup> and the recipient is given the opportunity for a formal hearing;<sup>4</sup> and

3 after audit or review, "adjust[ing]" the recipient's grant amount under section 4165 4 (d).

5 HUD's authority to "adjust the amount of a grant made to a recipient" pursuant to a report or 6 audit under 25 USC § 4165 (d) is "subject to" the substantial noncompliance and hearing
 7 requirements of section 4161(a).<sup>5</sup> Nevertheless, despite the amount of the recaptures involved here 8 (both in absolute terms and in relation to TMHA's total grants), HUD never offered TMHA an 9 opportunity for hearing that met the requirements of 24 CFR § 1000.540, nor has there been a 10 finding that TMHA's alleged noncompliance was "substantial[.]" 25 USC § 4161 (a)(1). Piffero 11 affidavit, ¶ 9; Brady affidavit, ¶ 10; and Cassadore affidavit, ¶ 10. See, HB p., 5; 17. HUD 12 concedes the point that it never offered TMHA a hearing, HB p., 29; 19-22 (offering the informal, 13 grant challenging process of 24 CFR § 1000.336) and, thus, is forced in defense of this failure, to 14 argue that the lack of a hearing was not prejudicial. HB pp., 29, 30.). Nothing within the 15 comprehensive panoply of remedies set out in Title IV authorized HUD to so summarily deprive the 16 TMHA of the procedural safeguards guaranteed by Title IV. For HUD to now say that its remedies 17 laid out in Title IV do not apply because it does not consider the FCAS funding violations to be 18 substantial, but that it can nevertheless exercise the exact remedies it is accorded under Sections 19 4161 and 4165 without making the findings those statutes require, is erroneous as further explained.
 20 HB pp., 25; 26-28, 26, 27; 1-19.

 22 <sup>3</sup>"Substantial noncompliance" means, inter alia, noncompliance that involves a "material 23 amount" of the recipient's grant funding, or the imposition of sanctions that have a "material effect on the recipient meeting" the goals of its Indian Housing Plan. 24 CFR § 1000.534.

24 <sup>4</sup>The form of hearing required by 25 USC § 4161 is structured to provide meaningful due process 25 protections. Pursuant to 24 CFR §§ 1000.532(b) and 1000.540, hearings are governed by the formal 26 hearing procedures of 24 CFR Part 26, which include, inter alia, de novo review by an Administrative Law Judge or Board of Contracts Appeals Judge; broad discovery rights and the right to secure subpoenas; the right to cross-examination; and the right to a decision based only on the record.

27 <sup>5</sup>There is a broad range of other remedies made available to HUD under Title IV, including, 28 replacing the recipient (25 USC § 4162), remedial technical training (25 USC § 4161(b)) and referral to the U.S. Attorney for a civil action. See, Section 4161(c).

1                   a.       25 USC § 4161(a) Applies Whenever HUD Attempts to Recapture or 2                                   Adjust Grant Funds That Have Been Awarded and Requires a Hearing
 3                                   and Finding of Substantial Noncompliance in this Case. It Also Bars the 4                                   Recapture of Funds Expended on Affordable Housing Activities

5                   Section 4161(a) provides, inter alia, that:

6                   (1)...[If] the Secretary finds after notice and opportunity for hearing that a 7                   recipient of assistance under this Act has failed to comply substantially with 8                   any provision of this Act, the Secretary shall—

9                   (B) reduce payments under this Act to the recipient by an amount of such 10                   payments that were not expended in accordance with this Act; ... *Id. (emphasis 11                   added).

12                   Thus, under Section 4161(a), HUD may recapture funds from future grants only "if" the 13                   Secretary: (i) provides an "opportunity for hearing"; and (ii) "finds...[that] the recipient has failed to 14                   comply substantially" with NAHASDA. Id. Such was the holding in Kansas City, which involved 15                   an interpretation of Section 111 of the Housing and Community Development Act (42 USC § 5311 16                   [1982]) ("CDBG Act"). Kansas City, supra, at 740. According to HUD, NAHASDA's
 17                   enforcement provisions "like many others in NAHASDA, [are] patterned after" their CDBG
 18                   counterparts,<sup>6</sup> and the language of Section 111 of the CDBG Act is essentially identical to Section 19                   4161(a) of NAHASDA.

20                   In Kansas City, the court held it was "absolutely clear" that the CDBG Act mandated a 21                   hearing before HUD could withhold funding from a recipient based on past noncompliance.<sup>7</sup>
 22                   Kansas City, supra, at 742. The Kansas City court cited a HUD admission that it had avoided 23                   granting hearings under Section 111 for some 14 years because it found hearings to be time 24                   consuming. Id. at 744. In rejecting administrative burden as a rational for avoiding the plain 25                   language of the statute, the court held "[W]hen a statute dictates that parties receive notice and a 26                   hearing...the provision of those basic procedural rights is not left to be decided by administrative 27                   'flexibility' or 'discretion.'" Id. at 744, quoting RKO General, Inc. v. FCC, 670 F.2d 215, 233 (D.C.
 28                   Cir. 1981)). The same holds true when the same statute that mandates notice and a hearing also

26                   <sup>6</sup>62 Fed. Reg. 35726 (July 2, 1997).

27                   <sup>7</sup>The noncompliance at issue here is the TMHA's alleged failure to accurately report FCAS, 28                   which resulted in alleged overfunding and led to the administrative action to reduce or adjust downward the TMHA's future grants.

1 requires a finding of substantial noncompliance, as did the statute at issue in Kansas City, and as 2 does Section 4161 (a). Particularly relevant to this case, the Kansas City court found that any claim
3 by HUD that the alleged noncompliance was "somehow insubstantial" (thereby not requiring notice 4 and an opportunity for a hearing) would be "belie[d]" by "the fact that HUD selected a relatively 5 drastic sanction (and one that is expressly authorized for violations under [the statute])...." Kansas 6 City, supra, at 742, fn 3.

7 The Court of Appeals for the First Circuit reached the same conclusion in City of Boston, 8 supra. There, HUD claimed it had not "terminated" a grant under the CDBG Act because it had not 9 yet made any payment under the grant. In dismissing that argument, the court held:

10 That HUD's...reading is hyper-technical in this context is further shown by the obvious 11 purpose of the notice and hearing provision. It was plainly intended to give a recipient a fair 12 chance to respond to the serious charge of noncompliance, and so have the grant maintained 13 if the Secretary's action was ill-conceived. Id. at 832-833.

13 Like in Kansas City and the City of Boston, here HUD is attempting to creatively argue its way out 14 of its responsibilities under the law. Section 4161 speaks directly to reductions in grant amounts 15 already awarded and provides that such reductions must be preceded by a hearing and finding of 16 substantial noncompliance. HUD is clearly trying to reduce TMHA's grant amounts by future 17 reductions due to the alleged overpayments. Section 4161 must, on its face, apply.

18 It is also evident that 25 USC § 4161(a)(1)(B) limits HUD's authority to recapture funds to 19 circumstances where NAHASDA funds were misspent by a Tribe, or were "not expended in 20 accordance with the Act." Section 4161 does not provide authority to recapture NAHASDA funds 21 that are improvidently allocated by HUD, but then spent by a housing authority on affordable 22 housing activities in accordance with the Act. One of the important purposes of the notice and 23 hearing requirements is to give a Tribe the opportunity to demonstrate that it has spent its 24 NAHASDA funds in accordance with the Act, which would then serve as a bar to recapture. In 25 circumventing the notice and hearing requirement, HUD has also improperly endeavored to 26 recapture funds without any inquiry into whether they were appropriately spent.

27 Section 4161 requires summary judgment in favor of the TMHA on both procedural 28 grounds and because there is no showing by HUD that the TMHA spent the funds for reasons other

1 than affordable housing activities. The facts in support of these circumstances are not in dispute as 2 the affidavits of Piffero, Brady and Cassadore show. No hearing was provided the TMHA pursuant 3 to 24 CFR § 1000.532. None was offered and in addition, the funds sought to be recovered by 4 HUD were spent on affordable housing activities. They were not improvidently expended. Thus, 5 HUD may not recoup them in any event.

6 b. 25 USC §4165 Applies Whenever HUD Attempts to Recapture or Adjust 7 Grant Funds That Have Been Awarded and Requires a Hearing and 8 Finding of Substantial Noncompliance in this Case

9 Section 4165<sup>8</sup> of NAHASDA authorizes HUD to audit or review NAHASDA recipients.
 10 Section 4165(d) sets out the remedies HUD may pursue if it finds the recipient is noncompliant as a 11 result of an audit:

12 Subject to Section 4161(a), after reviewing the reports and audits relating to a 13 recipient..., the Secretary may adjust the amount of a grant made to a recipient under 14 this act in accordance with the findings of the Secretary with respect to those audits 15 and reports. 25 USC § 4165 (d) (emphasis added).

16 In Lummi II, supra at *3, *4, the plaintiffs argued that this qualifier, "subject to Section 17 4161(a)," incorporated the procedural safeguards of Section 4161 into Section 4165. The Lummi II
 18 court rejected the notion. Id. at *9. Nonetheless, Lummi II found that HUD was subject to Section 19 4165 because the OIG audit and subsequent HUD review brought HUD within the purview of 20 Section 4165. Id. at *7-*9. The plaintiffs in Lummi II also conceded that Section 4165 controlled 21 over Section 4161, Lummi II, supra, at *5, fn. 6, under the circumstances where, as here, the 22 attempt to recapture is precipitated by the OIG audit. HB p., 6; 16-21. Lummi II concluded that 23 while the safeguards of Section 4161 are not incorporated directly into Section 4165 by the 24 qualifier, "subject to Section 4161(a)," notice, an opportunity to be heard, and the limitations upon 25 recapture of funds applied through Section 4165, itself. Lummi II, supra, at *11.

26 Despite Lummi II, HUD maintains, here, also that its compliance actions were not the result 27 of any audit or review of the genre contemplated by Section 4165, HB pp., 26, 27, and thus, it may

28 <sup>8</sup>HUD claims that TMHA concedes that 25 USC § 4161(a) and 25 USC § 4165 (d) do not apply.
 TMHA staked out no such position. Furthermore, TMHA now has the advantage of Fort Peck III and Lummi II, which explain that 25 USC § 4161 and 25 USC 4165 apply and are controlling to prevent HUD from summarily recapturing funds as here.

1 circumvent the procedural limitations and protections of Title IV. HUD continues to be mistaken.
2 It is wrong to claim that HUD's actions were not of the genre contemplated by Section 4165.
3 HUD's contention is belied by HUD's own Regulations. 24 CFR Section 1000.319 (d) ("Review of 4 FCAS will be accomplished by HUD as a component of A-133 audits, routine monitoring, FCAS 5 target monitoring, or other reviews").

6 Furthermore, all of the challenged actions in this case came as a result of a nationwide audit
7 of NAHASDA's program implementation by HUD's Office of Inspector General ("OIG"). HB p., 8 6;16-21. After finding that HUD may have allowed FCAS units to be over counted in light of 24 9 CFR § 1000.318, the OIG advised HUD to "audit all Housing Entities' FCAS, remove ineligible 10 units from FCAS, recover funding from Housing Entities that had inflated FCAS and reallocate the 11 recovery to recipients that were under funded," and "institute control procedures to insure FCAS 12 accuracy for future years." Fort Peck Hous. Auth. v. HUD, 435 F. Supp. 2d 1125, 1130 (D.C. Colo.
13 2006) (Fort Peck I) (emphasis added). The use of the word "audit" shows that even HUD's own 14 OIG expected that the procedural safeguards in Sections 4165(d) and 4161(a) would apply to the 15 recommended action. In short, whether HUD's recapture actions are characterized as "reductions" 16 under Section 4161(a), or "adjustments" under Section 4165(d), the result is always the same: HUD 17 unlawfully exacts funds when it recaptures awarded funds without following the requirements of 18 Sections 4161(a) and 4165(d).

19 The application of Section 4165 to this action is central because as explained, above, 20 Section 4165 brings with it the limitations upon the funding provided by 24 CFR § 1000.532. This 21 regulation allows HUD to recapture funds except where the grant amounts have already been spent 22 on affordable housing activities. In that case, they may not be recaptured or deducted from future 23 assistance provided to the Tribe since 24 CFR§ 1000.532 explicitly attaches to 25 USC § 4165.

24 Clearly, since Section 405, 25 USC § 4165, applies, by statute and by its own regulation, 25 HUD may not recapture grant amounts already used for affordable housing. Summary judgment 26 must issue in favor of the TMHA, because the amount recaptured, the sum of One Hundred 27 Nineteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-two Dollars ($119,182), and the amount to be recaptured, 28 the sum of Six Hundred Twenty-four Thousand One Hundred Sixty-five Dollars ($624,165), reflect

1 amounts expended on affordable housing activities inasmuch as HUD has never notified the TMHA 2 it had not spent these sums on affordable housing activities. Affidavit of Piffero, ¶¶ 6-10; Affidavit 3 of Brady, ¶¶ 7-10, Cassadore, ¶¶ 7-10.

4 4. NAHASDA Assigns a Trust Responsibility to HUD That it must Observe When 5 Administering to Tribal Housing Needs

6 Contrary to HUD's view, HB p., 27; 23-27, HUD has trust responsibilities under 7 NAHASDA and, thus, the canons of statutory construction for statutes applicable to Indians should 8 apply to NAHASDA's interpretation. Here, the TMHA is a Tribal block grant recipient designated 9 by Congress as a benefactor of the statute that HUD is entrusted to administer in order to fulfill its 10 unique trust responsibility owed by the United States to Indian Tribes. See, 25 USC §§ 4101(1), 11 (2), (3), (4), (5), (6) and (7). See also, Yakama Nation Hous. Auth. v. United States, 102 Fed.Cl.478 12 (Fed. Cl. Dec. 5, 2011).

13 Where this trust obligation is implicated, the United States and its agencies have fiduciary 14 responsibilities. See, e.g., U.S. v. Mitchell, 463 U.S. 206, 225 (1983). Here, the Government's 15 conduct must "be judged by the most exacting fiduciary standards." See, Seminole Nation v. United 16 States, 316 U.S. 286, 296-297 (1942). The trust responsibility constrains any discretion that HUD 17 may otherwise enjoy in administering NAHASDA, and creates for HUD a fiduciary duty to each 18 Tribe under NAHASDA. TMHA insists that HUD breached these trust duties by unlawfully 19 recapturing and withholding grant funds the Tribe was entitled to under NAHASDA. HUD denies 20 that NAHASDA incorporates this trust obligation. HB pp., 27-29. HUD's theory that NAHASDA 21 funds are "gratuitously" provided and that NAHASDA funds are, therefore, not a "trust corpus" is 22 an over broad view by HUD of its authority.

23 The U.S. Court of Federal Claims recently considered the trust argument in another Lummi
 24 decision, Lummi Tribe v. United States, 99 Fed.Cl. 584, 594 (2011) (Lummi I). There, HUD asked 25 the court to dismiss the Tribes' claims for money damages arising under NAHASDA, arguing 26 NAHASDA is not a "money-mandating" statute. The court rejected HUD's argument expressly 27 holding that NAHASDA is such a statute:

28 In plaintiffs' view, NAHASDA is money mandating because it leaves no room for

1 HUD to exercise discretion in making grants. This court agrees. "In general, a statute 2 will be deemed to be a money-mandating source of law if it compels the government 3 to make a payment to an identified party or group." ARRA Energy Co. I v. United 4 States, 97 Fed. Cl. 12, 19 (2011) (citing Eastport, 372 F.2d at 1009 ("Under Section 5 1491 what one must always ask is whether the constitutional clause or the legislation 6 which the claimant cites can be fairly interpreted as mandating compensation by the 7 Federal Government for the damage sustained.")); See, also Samish Indian Nation v.
8 United States, 419 F.3d 1355, 1364 (Fed. Cir. 2005) (observing that "where the 9 statutory text leaves the government no discretion over payment of claimed funds[,]" 10 Congress has provided a money-mandating source for jurisdiction in this court); 11 Gray v. United States, 886 F.2d 1305, 1307 (Fed. Cir. 1989) (characterizing a statute 12 as money mandating for the purposes of Tucker Act jurisdiction where the Secretary 13 had no discretion to prevent a qualified applicant from participating in the statutory 14 program).

15 As indicated above, NAHASDA provides that the Secretary "shall . . . make grants" 16 and "shall allocate any amounts" among Indian tribes that comply with certain 17 requirements, 25 USC §§ 4111 (emphasis added), and directs that the funding 18 allocation be made pursuant to a particular formula, 25 USC § 4152. The Secretary 19 is thus bound by the statute to pay a qualifying tribe the amount to which it is 20 entitled under the formula. NAHASDA, in other words, can fairly be interpreted as 21 mandating the payment of compensation by the government. Eastport, 372 F.2d at 22 1009. See, Lummi I, supra at 594.

23 See, Lummi I, supra at 594. The Lummi I Court's decision on this point is directly contrary to 24 HUD's argument that NAHASDA funds are gratuitously provided.

25 HUD cites Marceau v. Blackfeet Housing Authority, 540 F.3d 916 (9th Cir. 2008) as 26 authority for the proposition that HUD has no trust responsibilities arising under NAHASDA. HB 27 p., 29;2-10. This argument mischaracterizes the ruling in Marceau, where the claims presented 28 against HUD were dissimilar from the case at bar. In Marceau, the claimants sought to hold HUD liable for construction methods that resulted in black mold problems. The Court concluded that HUD has no trust responsibility in these circumstances because the "federal government did not build, manage, or maintain the housing." Id., at 928. Unlike Marceau, the claims at issue in this case arise from HUD's conduct in recapturing or withholding grant money, not an allegation that HUD allowed grant money to be used improvidently. As indicated, HUD could make no such claim in this case since it has not notified the TMHA that it mishandled funds. Piffero affidavit, ¶¶ 6-10, Brady affidavit, ¶¶ 7, 10, Cassadore Affidavit ¶¶ 7, 10. The entire record submitted by HUD is devoid of such notice. HUD's reliance upon Marceau to avoid its trust responsibility is, therefore, unavailing.

1           5. The Denial of a Hearing Was Prejudicial to the TMHA

2           HUD claims that the absence of a hearing before funding may be exacted from the TMHA is 3 not prejudicial. HB p., 29; 30. HUD argues that it gave notice to the TMHA and it allowed the 4 TMHA to explain itself, including an administrative process unrelated to the procedures mandated 5 by Title IV where, as here, funding subsequent to the award of a grant is impacted. HUD, thus, 6 argues that it received constitutionally adequate notice and that is enough. HB p., 29; 19.23.

7           HUD misstates the issue. The question is not whether TMHA received all the 8 constitutionally mandated notice and an opportunity to be heard to which it is entitled. Rather, the 9 question is, whether the TMHA received the opportunity to be heard that NAHASDA requires. The 10 answer to the controlling question is in the negative. The TMHA was not accorded all the 11 procedural safeguards to which it was entitled as it was accorded none of the procedural safeguards
12 imposed upon HUD by 24 CFR § 1000.540, where HUD has obligated itself to use the hearing
13 procedures set out in 24 CFR Part 26. The TMHA also received none of the procedural safeguards 14 invoked by the Court in Lummi II under 25 USC § 4165.

15           Instead, HUD claims it offered the TMHA the "equivalent"--to wit, an opportunity to submit 16 a written response to HUD's demand, which the agency "considered." HB p., 29; 19-23. HUD's 17 equivalency argument is wanting. As the Court in Reuters cogently stated:

18           [I]t is elementary that an agency must adhere to its own rules and regulations. Ad 19 hoc departures from those rules, even to achieve laudable aims, cannot be 20 sanctioned, for therein lies the seeds of destruction of the orderliness and 21 predictability which are the hallmarks of lawful administrative action. Simply stated, 22 rules are rules, and fidelity to the rules which have been properly promulgated...is 23 required to those whom Congress has entrusted the regulatory missions of modern 24 life.

25           Reuters Ltd. v. FCC, 781 F.2d 946, 950-51 (D.C. Cir. 1986) (citation omitted).

26           HUD next argues that even if the procedural protections required of it were not provided, 27 TMHA has shown no prejudice. Thus, TMHA's argument should be stricken. HB p., 29; 16-18.
28 There are responses to this assertion. First, no case was offered by HUD holding that denial of a hearing guaranteed by regulation or statute is "prejudicial" only if the complainant can show that it would have prevailed if such a hearing had been held. Indeed, were this the case, one would need to hold a hearing, and assess the outcome, to determine if its original denial was "prejudicial."

1 Then, if given the opportunity, the HUD brief reveals, itself, that there were issues that the TMHA 2 could have raised in the adjudicatory proceedings. HUD acknowledges that the TMHA still owned 3 and maintained units because there was a delay in conveying them due to uncertainty about deed, 4 assignments and releases. HB pp., 3-4. This may have made a difference whether the unit was 5 conveyed, should have been conveyed or was conveyed as expediently as possible.

6 Also, HUD is trying to recapture funds where all funds have already been spent on 7 affordable housing activities. Whether or not, therefore, the TMHA was overfunded, these are 8 complete defenses to the recapture of funds. In short, it is apparent from the record HUD submitted 9 and the content of HUD's brief that it would not have been an academic exercise for the TMHA to 10 participate in a real adjudicatory proceeding before a neutral third party. These are issues that 11 surely would have been raised. Given the absence of a normal fact-finding record, TMHA has been 12 prejudiced by HUD's refusal to offer a hearing under 24 CFR Part 26.

13 6. HUD Is Imposing an Exaction upon the TMHA Which Permits Recovery of 14 Funds Already Recaptured

15 The gravamen of TMHA's complaint is that NAHASDA and its corresponding regulations 16 have been violated by the recapture and continued attempt at recapture of funds that the TMHA has 17 spent on affordable housing activities. HUD's failure to comply with the statutes and regulations 18 (particularly, the taking and continued attempt to take funds expended on affordable housing 19 activities) prior to taking of TMHA's funds constitutes an illegal exaction. As has been explained:

20 an illegal exaction claim may be maintained when "the plaintiff has paid money over 21 to the Government, directly or in effect, and seeks return of all or part of that sum" 22 that "was improperly paid, exacted, or taken from the claimant in contravention of 23 the Constitution, a statute, or a regulation." Eastport S.S. Corp. v. United States, 178 24 Ct.Cl. 599, 605, 372 F.2d 1002, 1007 (1967). The Tucker Act provides jurisdiction 25 to recover an illegal exaction by government officials when the exaction is based on an asserted statutory power. 178 Ct.Cl. at 605, 372 F.2d at 1007-08. See South
Puerto Rico Sugar Co. Trading Corp. v. United States, 167 Ct.Cl. 236, 244, 334 F.2d 622, 626 (1964), cert. denied, 379 U.S. 964, 85S.Ct. 654, 13 L.Ed.2d 558 (1965) (recovery of "exactions said to have been illegally imposed by federal officials (except where Congress has expressly placed jurisdiction elsewhere)").

26 Aerolineas Argentinas v. United States, 77 F.3d 1564, 1572-73 (Fed. Cir. 1996). See also, Pan 27 American World Airways v. United States, 129 Ct.Cl. 53, 55, 122 F.Supp. 682, 683-84 (1954) ("the 28 collection of money by Government officials, pursuant to an invalid regulation" is an illegal

1   exaction and not a tort).

2           Thus, an illegal exaction claim is cognizable where the government's action is the result of 3   the "misinterpretation or misapplication of statutes, regulations, or forms." Aerolineas, supra, at 4   1578; See, Crocker v. United States, 37 Fed. Cl. 191, 197 (1997)(explaining that one type of non-5   contract-based money claim envisioned by the Tucker Act is where "the Government, under color 6   of statute, demands and receives money from the claimant," and the parties disagree whether the 7   statute requires such payment).

8           In a circumstance involving the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) where, as here, the statute 9   set forth specific procedures the IRS had to follow to recover a refund erroneously paid and the 10   plaintiff alleged in the complaint that the IRS failed to follow those statutorily mandated 11   procedures, the court held that the plaintiff properly pled an illegal exaction claim and dismissal 12   was unwarranted:

13           [P]laintiff has sufficiently pled an illegal exaction claim in this case. Here, plaintiff 14   has made a prima facie case that the exaction at issue was the direct result of a 15   "misapplication of" the law and that the remedy for such violation is a return of the 16   money unlawfully exacted. As discussed above, plaintiff's claim is based on the IRS' 17   alleged misapplication of the statutory erroneous refund collection procedures. The 18   Federal Circuit, in Stanley, held that where the taxpayer has paid the assessed tax, 19   the IRS must either file suit under 26 USC § 7405(b) to recoup the refund or 20   reassess the liability for the relevant tax year under 26 USC §§ 2604 and 6501(a), 21   taking into account the erroneous refund, after which it may recover the reassessed 22   liability under 26 USC § 6502(a)(1). Stanley, 140 F.3d at 1027. Here, taking 23   plaintiff's allegations as true, the IRS did not reassess plaintiff's tax liability to 24   account for the erroneous refund, as laid out in 26 USC §§ 2604, 6501(a), and 25   6502(a)(1), nor did the IRS file suit under 26 USC § 7405(b), as it was arguably 26   required to do. Because the IRS did not follow the erroneous refund procedures, 27   but instead took the refund through levy and wage garnishment, the IRS 28   appears to have "illegally exacted" the refund.

29           Pennoni v. United States, 79 Fed. Cl. 552, 561-562 (Fed. Cl. 2007) (citing Stanley v. United States, 30   140 F.3d 1023, 1027 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (emphasis added).

31           Just as in Pennoni, here the TMHA has pled that HUD's actions in exacting money by 32   recapturing, reducing or adjusting (i.e., exacting or retaining) TMHA's grant funds to recover
33   alleged overpayments, without complying with the statutorily required provisions of 25 USC §§ 34   4161 and 4165 (which include a finding of substantial noncompliance) and the regulations 35   implemented thereunder, was a misapplication of the relevant law. Further, as in Pennoni, return of 36   of

1 the recaptured funds is the "necessarily implicit" remedy when the government violates the 2 applicable statutes and regulations. Pennoni, supra, at 562. This proposition is further buttressed
3 by the conclusion that NAHASDA is a money mandating statute, such that refund of the funds 4 illegally taken is a proper remedy.

5 Based on the foregoing, TMHA has met the burden of pleading an illegal exaction or 6 retention claim resulting from HUD's failure to comply with 25 USC §§ 4161 and 4165 and the 7 implementing regulations at 24 CFR §1000.532 and §1000.540. In short, there is no meaningful 8 distinction between this case and Pennoni.

9 HUD asserts, however, that if it were to repay the TMHA for the funding it erroneously 10 took, it would be taking money away from other deserving housing authorities. HB, p., 31; 7-15.
11 The argument, thus, appears to be that because HUD harmed the TMHA by its erroneous taking, 12 the TMHA must continue to suffer to the benefit of others. HUD's argument, however, runs 13 headlong into the problem created when the law requires HUD to comply with certain procedures 14 prior to exacting or retaining TMHA's funds. In such cases "courts have ordered that the money be 15 returned . . . , even where the courts have recognized that this results in a windfall" to the plaintiff.
16 Pennoni, supra, at 562, (citing Stanley, supra, 1024-25, and O'Bryant v. United States, 49 F.3d 340, 17 346 (7th Cir. 1995)). "Underlying these cases is the understanding that return of the refund is the 18 'necessarily implicit' remedy when the government violates the erroneous refund statute." Id., 19 (citing Norman v. United States, 429 F.3d 1081, 1095, 1096 (Fed. Cir. 2005)).

20 The TMHA is, therefore, not asking HUD to take funds away from another housing 21 authority that it should otherwise have had. Indeed, there is no proof in the record that if HUD 22 reimbursed the TMHA for the funds erroneously captured, HUD would, perforce, be taking funding 23 away from another housing authority to which that housing authority was entitled. The argument, 24 thus, should be disregarded. The TMHA, however, is simply asking that HUD be required to return 25 the funds to it to which it is lawfully entitled. It is up to HUD to find the source of funds. For the 26 reasons set out herein, however, the TMHA is entitled to be reimbursed for the funds already 27 recaptured.

1           7. HUD's Arguments In Support of Its Use of 24 CFR § 1000.318 Do Not Pass
 2           Muster

3           HUD offers multiple excuses for its use of 24 CFR § 1000.318 as applied to the TMHA.
 4 They are wanting as Lummi II and Fort Peck III reveal as discussed above. In addition, the TMHA 5 points out the following:

6                   a. HUD's Reliance Upon Fort Peck II Is Misplaced

7           HUD relies upon the Tenth Circuit's decision in Fort Peck II, Fort Peck Housing Authority
 8 v. U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, 367 Fed.Appx. 844, 892, n. 15 (10th Cir., 9 2010). HUD contends Fort Peck II supports its position that under 24 CFR § 1000.318, it has the 10 authority to recapture funds under NAHASDA, and including the recapture of funds for units HUD 11 determines were conveyed or should have been conveyed, HB pp., 6; 23-29, 7; 1-8, 14; 20-28, 12 whether or not the funds to be recaptured were spent on affordable housing activities.

13           The Tenth Circuit did not address in Fort Peck II the issue of whether HUD could recapture 14 funds already spent on affordable housing activities. Recapture of such funds was not an issue on 15 appeal. Footnote 15 of the Fort Peck II decision addresses the dismissal of Fort Peck's cross-16 appeal. The cross-appeal was determined to be moot. HUD is prohibited from recapturing IHBG 17 grant funds that have already been spent on affordable housing activities pursuant to the restrictions 18 in 25 USC §4165 and 24 CFR § 1000.532 and the Tenth Circuit has not ruled to the contrary. In 19 seeking recapture of funds previously spent on affordable housing activities, HUD violates 25 USC 20 §§ 4161(a) and 4165 along with 24 CFR § 1000.532 of the implementing regulation, turns the 21 remedial scheme in NAHASDA on its head and stakes out a position that flies in the face of the 22 principles of self-determination that are at the heart of NAHASDA.<sup>9</sup>

23           Lastly, Fort Peck II should be of little help to HUD because the Court in Fort Peck III, 24 made clear that Fort Peck II addressed only that situation where the housing authorities no longer 25

26           <sup>9</sup>Fort Peck II should also be of little precedential value in any event, as it is an unpublished 27 decision and, therefore, it is "not precedential . . ." 10th Cir. R. 32.1(A) (emphasis added). Furthermore, 28 the Fort Peck II Court's choice not to publish was deliberate. The Tenth Circuit denied HUD's motion to have the opinion published. See, Fort Peck Housing Authority v. HUD, Nos. 06-1425 and 06-1447, Doc.
 No. 01018416418 (10th Cir. May 6, 2010).

1 owned and maintained the housing units. Left for disposition, therefore, were those units where 2 HUD had determined that the units should have been conveyed and for that reason, no longer 3 counted in the FCAS. Fort Peck III, supra at 2.

4           b.       The NAHASDA Reauthorization Act Substantively Changed, Rather 5           Than Merely "Clarified," NAHASDA's Formula Allocation Provision

6           HUD asserts that the NAHASDA 2008 Reauthorization Act simply "clarified" HUD's view
7 of 25 USC § 4152, as written, the statute which HUD believes vindicates its view of 24 CFR § 8 1000.318, allowing for HUD's summary, sweeping disqualification of units and its attempt to 9 recapture funds based upon those disqualifications. HB pp., 16, 17, 25. HUD argues that its view 10 of 24 CFR § 1000.318 through the window of 25 USC § 4152 must be sustained because Congress 11 substantially adopted 24 CFR § 1000.318(a) into the 2008 Reauthorization Act.

12           This argument is defeated, however, by the text and context of the 2008 Reauthorization
13 Act. The substantive change of law is evidenced by: (1) the plain language of the amendment to 25 14 USC §§ 4152(b)(1), and (2) the 2008 Reauthorization Act's "civil action" provision which allowed 15 actions to proceed under the prior statute, if they were timely filed. The 2008 Reauthorization was 16 anything but a mere "clarification" of existing law.

17           To argue that the 2008 Reauthorization Act amendment merely clarified the law, HUD 18 draws upon 2007 Senate committee report which characterizes the amendment of 25 USC § 19 4152(b)(1) as a "[c]larification." (quoting S. Rep. No. 110-238, at 9 (2007)). HB p., 17; 18-24.
20 However, where, as here, the text and context of an amendment establish that it is a substantive 21 change of the law, congressional labels of "clarification" are given little weight, or no weight at all.
22 See, e.g., United States v. Vazquez-Rivera, 135 F.3d 172, 177, (1st Cir. 1998); United States v.
23 Wright, 625 F.3d 583, 600 (9th Cir. 2010); Boddie v. Am. Broad. Companies, Inc., 881 F.2d 267, 24 269 (6th Cir. 1989); Fowler v. Unified Sch. Dist. No. 259, Sedgwick County, Kan., 128 F.3d 1431, 25 1435-36 (10th Cir. 1997); Commissioner of Internal Revenue v. Callahan Realty Corp., 143 F.2d 26 214, 216 (2nd Cir. 1944).

27           The substantive nature of the amendment to 25 USC § 4152(b)(1) is readily apparent from a 28 comparison of the text of the amendment with the text of the original formula allocation. The pre-

1 amendment version of the provision included "[t]he number of low-income housing dwelling units
2 owned or operated at the time [September 30, 1997] pursuant to a contract between an Indian 3 housing authority for the tribe and the Secretary" as a mandatory FCAS factor. 25 USC 4152(b)(1) 4 (emphasis added). There is no controversy that the original formula allocation provision included 5 and "explicitly list[ed]...the number of 1997 dwelling units" as one of the FCAS factors. Fort Peck 6 II, supra, at 890.

7       However, through the 2008 Reauthorization Act, Congress materially altered the formula 8 allocation provision so that housing units are only counted for FCAS purposes if they "are owned or 9 operated by a recipient on the October 1 of the calendar year immediately preceding the year for 10 which funds are provided" and have not been "lost to the recipient by conveyance, demolition, or 11 other means . . . ." P.L. 110-411, 301. This is far more than a cosmetic clarification. This is an 12 unconditional elimination of housing units from the FCAS count. Housing units which were 13 included under the original formula allocation provision must now be excluded. This amendment is 14 a substantive change of law with an enormous financial impact on the TMHA.

15       Additionally, the 2008 Reauthorization Act provides that the statutory changes to the 16 formula allocation provision would "not apply to any claim arising from a formula current assisted 17 stock calculation or count involving an Indian housing block grant allocation for any fiscal year 18 through fiscal year 2008, if a civil action relating to the claim is filed by not later than 45 days after 19 October 14, 2008." P.L. 110-411, § 301(b)(1)(E). With this "civil action" provision, Congress 20 expressly declined to apply the amendment retroactively to TDHEs that filed a timely civil action.
21 If the amendment was nothing but a clarification of existing law, there would be no need for the 22 provision permitting tribes to file suit under the pre-amendment formula allocation provision.

23                   c. HUD's Argument That The Pre-Amendment Version of the Formula
24                   Allocation Provision Unambiguously Required the FCAS Reductions 25                   Under 24 CFR § 1000.318(a) Is Wrong.

26       HUD also argues that the pre-amendment version of the formula allocation provision 27 unambiguously "supports" the categorical elimination of housing units required by § 1000.318(a).
28 HB, pp., 14-15. In support of this argument, HUD asserts that the pre-amendment statute's use of the phrase "based on" indicates that the one factor identified in § 4152(b)(1), i.e., the number of

1 1997 units, is only a starting point for the allocation formula, which may be affected by other 2 factors. HB, p., 14; 21. Several courts have held that while the words "based on" do not compel an 3 agency to rest its decision "solely on" a specified factor, such language constrains the agency from 4 "abandon[ing]" or "supplant[ing]" the specified factor. Catawba County, N.C. v. E.P.A., 571 F.3d 5 20, 37 (D.C. Cir. 2009) (citing Sierra Club v. EPA, 356 F.3d 296, 306 (D.D.C. 2004)); See, also 6 Environmental Defense v. E.P.A., 369 F.3d 193, 203-04 (2d Cir. 2004); Nuclear Energy Inst., Inc.
7 v. E.P.A., 373 F.3d 1251, 1270 (D.C. Cir. 2004). The regulation renders irrelevant the number of 8 units owned or operated as of September 30, 1997 for the purposes of the formula. More precisely, 9 the regulation categorically eliminates from FCAS units that the TDHE "no longer has the legal 10 right to own, operate, or maintain . . . , whether such right is lost by conveyance, demolition, or 11 otherwise . . . ." 24 CFR § 1000.318.

12 Under the regulation, the Secretary is denied any discretion to include units that were to be 13 included under the statutory formula. Hence, the regulation replaces, i.e., supplants, a statutory 14 factor with something materially different. The words "based on"--as used in the formula allocation 15 provision--do not grant HUD the authority to supplant a statutory factor in this manner and this 16 construction of law is only confirmed and strengthened by the text and context of the 2008 17 Reauthorization Act. If the pre-amendment formula allocation provision properly granted HUD the 18 authority to promulgate the regulation, the subsequent change of law would have been unnecessary.

19 Furthermore, courts have held that the phrase "based on" is ambiguous. See, e.g., Sierra 20 Club, supra, at 306; Environmental Defense, supra, at 204; Catawba County, supra, at 37. To the 21 extent such ambiguity exists, it should be resolved in plaintiff's favor under the Indian Canon of 22 Construction. Under the Indian Canon of Construction, "statutes are to be construed liberally in 23 favor of Indians, with ambiguous provisions interpreted to their benefit." Montana v. Blackfeet 24 Tribe of Indians, 471 U.S. 759, 766 (1985). See also, South Carolina v. Catawba Indian Tribe, 25 Inc., 476 U.S. 498, 506 (1986) ("[D]oubtful expressions of legislative intent must be resolved in 26 favor of the Indians."). The Canon further provides "for a broad construction when the issue is 27 whether Indian rights are reserved or established, and for a narrow construction when Indian rights 28 are to be abrogated or limited." Nat'l Labor Relations Bd. v. Pueblo of San Juan, 276 F.3d 1186, 1 1194 (10th Cir. 2002) (citing Bryan v. Itasca County, Minnesota, 426 U.S. 373 (1976)).

2       Additionally, the familiar "Chevron deference," see, Chevron U.S.A., Inc. v. Natural Res.
3 Def. Council, 467 U.S. 837 (1984), is trumped by the Canon in this case. See, Ramah Navajo
4 Chapter v. Lujan, 112 F.3d 1455, 1462 (10th Cir. 1997). While there may be questions as to what 5 exactly "based on" means, it is clear that "based on" does not mean that HUD was authorized to 6 supplant the first factor of the formula allocation provision by regulatory fiat. Indeed, whether the 7 Canon is applied or not, this is an eminently reasonable and amply supported interpretation. While 8 HUD should not benefit from Chevron deference, even if Chevron balancing were applied in this 9 case, HUD's interpretation would not prevail as the regulation is "arbitrary, capricious" and 10 "manifestly contrary to the statute." Chevron.

11       Lastly, TMHA's interpretation of the pre-amendment formula allocation provision and 24 12 CFR § 1000.318 is consistent with NAHASDA's overall goals and purposes. Congress passed 13 NAHASDA with the recognition that providing "affordable homes in safe and healthy 14 environments is an essential element in the special role of the United States in helping tribes and 15 their members to improve their housing conditions and socioeconomic status." 25 USC § 4101(4).
16 Congress determined that "the need for affordable homes and healthy environments on Indian 17 reservations [and] Indian communities is acute." Id. § 4101(6). TMHA's interpretation is consistent 18 with these goals and benefits the tribes by setting a fixed baseline for each tribe's housing inventory 19 to be counted for formula purposes. Simply put, 24 CFR § 1000.318 violates the pre-amendment 20 version of NAHASDA's formula allocation provision.

21       8. HUD Violated The Pre-2008 Version of NAHASDA, 24 CFR § 1000.318 and the 22 APA, By Excluding and Reducing Funding for Units That Were Not Actually Lost By Conveyance to a Third Party, Demolition or Otherwise.

23       HUD argues that 24 CFR § 1000.318(a)(1) and (2) properly reflect need, HB p., 15; 21-22, 24 21; 6, and its use of these sections was abundantly fair. HB p., 21;13. HUD is once again 25 mistaken.

26       For this argument, HUD returns to Fort Peck II, which addressed only the exclusion of units 27 no longer owned or operated by a TDHE. As previously pointed out, beyond any possible 28 application to Fort Peck Housing Authority, not only is Fort Peck II dubious authority on any of

1 these matters, but there is absolutely no basis for reading Fort Peck II as encompassing units that 2 were still owned and operated by a TDHE at the time they were disqualified for funding--a crucial 3 distinction.

4 HUD's expansive interpretation of Fort Peck II to authorize the exclusion of units that a 5 TDHE still owns and operates simply cannot be reconciled with the decision in Keetoowah which 6 struck down a similar regulation that was not based on need. See, United Keetwoowah Band of 7 Cherokee Indians of Oklahoma v. U.S. Dep't. Of Hous. & Urban Dev., 567 F.3d 1235 (10th Cir., 8 2009). Nor should the court give Fort Peck II such an expansive reading because to do so would 9 render Fort Peck II in direct conflict with Keetoowah. Fort Peck II did not address, either expressly 10 or implicitly, whether these dwelling units, though still owned and operated by a TDHE, could 11 lawfully be excluded from FCAS by HUD, or whether HUD could recapture funding for these units
12 under 24 CFR § 1000.318. Instead, the court's decision upheld the regulation as one which validly 13 excluded units which a TDHE "no longer owned or operated". Fort Peck II, supra, at 887, 891, and 14 892. Consequently, at the very least, HUD may not lawfully exclude FCAS units the TMHA still 15 owned and operated.

16 HUD argues that the exclusion of units under 24 CFR § 1000.318(a), as HUD reads it, is a 17 proper reflection of need. HUD buttresses this view with the claim that: 1) since need must account 18 for all Indian tribes, and 2) because unlawfully excluding FCAS or recapturing funding for FCAS 19 from one or more tribes leaves more funds for others then, 3) the needs test is met. See, HB pp., 17 20 20, 21. This post hoc rationalization was rejected in Keetoowah. As in Keetoowah, here HUD 21 withdrew funds not because of a drop in needy households but because of an arbitrary and vague 22 "practicable" or "actively enforce[ing] strict compliance" standard. 567 F.3d. at 1240. Making 23 funding contingent upon whether tribes "actively enforce strict compliance" with terms of the 24 MHOA or convey those units "as soon as practicable" does not relate to a tribe's housing needs.

25 "[A]n agency may not promulgate categorical rules that do not take into account the 26 categories that are made significant by Congress." Levine v. Apker, 455 F.3d 71, 85 (2nd Cir., 2006).
27 Here, that delegation is clear: 25 USC § 1452(b) unambiguously states that the amount of Indian 28 Housing Block Grant (IHBG) funding must be based on housing need. Keetoowah, supra, at 1240,

1 1241. HUD's ends cannot justify its means--exclusion under 24 CFR §§ 1000.318(a)(1) and (2) of 2 units still owned or operated by tribes is unrelated to need and is unlawful under NAHASDA. Id.

3 HUD contends that the Negotiated Rulemaking Committee determined that the elimination 4 of conveyance eligible FCAS units reflected need when 24 CFR § 1000.318(a) was promulgated.
5 HB, pp. 16,17, 20, 21. This assertion is without support. The Negotiated Rulemaking Committee 6 made no finding that the requirements laid out in subsections (1) and (2) were reflective of housing 7 need. In fact, these subsections were added at the last minute, in response to a comment that was 8 not reflective of need. See, 63 Fed. Reg. 12343 (March 12, 1998). Moreover, the Negotiated 9 Rulemaking Committee also approved the regulation struck down in Keetoowah, and yet this did 10 not deter the court from finding that the regulation did not reflect housing need. Nor should it. The 11 law is clear that a regulation promulgated pursuant to negotiated rulemaking has no special force. 5 12 USC § 570.

13 HUD additionally argues that the 2008 Reauthorization Act is "virtually conclusive" 14 evidence that 24 CFR § 1000.318(a) implements congressional intent as expressed in the pre-15 amendment law, citing Commodity Future Trading Commission v. Schor, 478 U.S. 883 (1986).
16 HB p. 17; 1-9. Schor is distinguishable and inapposite. In Schor, the relevant portions of the statute 17 at issue were virtually re-enacted without change. Here, as explained, the 2008 Reauthorization 18 Act changed the pre-amendment formula allocation provision. Additionally, the language of the 19 original and re-enacted statutes in Schor were readily susceptible to the administrative 20 interpretation of those statutes. By contrast the relevant statutory language of the pre-amendment 21 version of the formula allocation provision speaks directly to the FCAS issue incorporated with 24
22 CFR § 1000.318. Moreover, unlike the case at bar, Schor did not involve congressional committee 23 hearing testimony from agency representative that the amendment would change existing law.

24 9. 24 CFR § 1000.318 is Impermissibly Vague.

25 HUD argues that 24 CFR §§ 1000.318(a)(1) and (2) are not impermissibly vague. The 26 vagaries of 24 CFR § 1000.318 are outlined in IV.B.7(c), ante.
