Michigan Indian Legal Services (MILS) is an equal opportunity employer providing free legal services statewide to low income Indians, Indian organizations, and Indian tribes. MILS currently represents Indian individuals, families, tribes, and tribal organizations in cases that span a wide range of legal issues. MILS is also at the forefront of ICWA and MIFPA litigation in Michigan.

Founded in 1975, MILS is one of the oldest institutions in Michigan dedicated to addressing the legal needs of tribes and tribal members. MILS has produced an almost unparalleled network of attorneys working within Indian country in Michigan. Previous MILS attorneys and interns work as chief judges of tribal courts, in-house counsel for tribes, legal aid attorneys, and as attorneys for large and niche law firms.

MILS seeks three summer legal interns/externs regardless of year for positions with its Traverse City and Southwest Michigan offices. MILS is willing to work with interns/externs who need to work remotely. MILS is also willing to work with law school to help law students complete externship credit hour requirements or funding.

The intern will fill the following positions. One position will be based out of tribal offices in Southwestern Michigan and assist an attorney providing on-site services to tribal Pokagon Band of Potawatomi and Nottawaseppi Huron Band of Potawatomi members. One intern in the Traverse City office will focus on a tribal domestic violence/human trafficking project. One intern in the Traverse City office will provide direct assistance to clients.
