

VERMONT
LAW SCHOOL

First Nations Environmental Law Scholarship for On-campus
Environmental Master's and LLM Degree Candidates

Application deadline extended to May 30, 2020

Vermont Law School is committed to helping tribal governments and the people of Indian communities deal with the challenges of protecting their environments with the First Nations Environmental Law Scholarship.

Vermont Law School is committed to helping tribal governments and the people of Indian communities deal with the challenges of protecting their environments with the First Nations Environmental Law Scholarship.

Master's or LLM students learn the basics of pollution control, land use, and resource allocation, as well as more sophisticated concepts of pollution prevention, ecosystem management, and international law. Special courses dealing with the unique jurisdictional and cultural aspects of Indian Country environmental issues are also offered.

The First Nations Environmental Law Scholarship provides financial assistance for tuition to one or more candidates admitted to the Master's or LLM degrees each year.

MORE INFO

VERMONT
LAW SCHOOL

1.888.277.5985
admiss@vermontlaw.edu
Get in Touch

Apply Now

Vermont Law School
164 Chelsea St, PO Box 96
South Royalton, VT 05068

View Online Adjust Email Preferences Unsubscribe