Schedule

DAY ONE – Wednesday September 2, 2020

8:00 a.m. Webinar Lobby Opens

8:25 a.m. Welcome and Introductions

Maryanne Mohan – Suquamish Tribe, Suquamish

8:30 a.m. Taxation in Indian Country: An Update in Washington

Panelists will discuss the retail sales tax compact legislation and its implementation, and the Department of Revenue (“DOR”)’s tribal liaison will present on 5 key areas of engagement between tribes and DOR.

Gilbert Brewer – Washington Department of Revenue, Olympia

Lisa Koop – Tulalip Tribes, Tulalip

Keri O’Connell – Washington Department of Revenue, Olympia

Moderator: Brie Coyle Jones – Miller Nash Graham & Dunn, LLP, Seattle

9:45 a.m. BREAK

10:00 a.m. Tribes and Emerging and Recurrent Issues with Washington’s Water Law System

The experts on this panel will address some of the new and recurring issues relating to providing adequate water for fish and consumptive uses in the Skagit watershed, Ecology’s problematic approach to implementing watershed plans and mitigation for both permit-exempt well use in the wake of the Hirst legislation and permitted water rights, and how mitigation is approached in watersheds that already have agreed upon plans in place. The panel includes tribal attorneys, lawyers for nonprofits, and attorneys in private practice.

Wyatt Golding – Ziontz Chestnut, Seattle

Sharon Haensly – Squaxin Island Legal Department, Kamilche

Rachael Paschal Osborn – Public Interest Water Lawyer (ret.), Vashon

8:25 a.m. Welcome and Introductions

Maryanne Mohan – Suquamish Tribe, Suquamish

8:30 a.m. The Continued Movement for Murdered, Missing
Indigenous Womxn and People

The MMIW/P movement has increased awareness of the disproportionate violence experienced by Indigenous women. Grassroots efforts of women, families, and advocates compelled to seek answers and demand justice have drawn much-needed attention from law enforcement, legislators, and the general public. This panel will discuss the ongoing efforts around the epidemic that still plagues Native women and families. You will hear from three attorneys, each with a unique perspective on local and national advocacy around police reform and accountability, data collection, jurisdictional issues, and how other lawyers and advocates can support this important movement.

Danielle Bargala – Muckleshoot Indian Tribe, Auburn

Aubony Burns – King County Prosecutor’s Office, Seattle

Mary Kathryn Nagle – Pipestem Law, PC, Tulsa

Moderator: Brooke Pinkham – Seattle University School of Law, Seattle

10:00 a.m. BREAK

10:15 a.m. State Legislative and Administrative Update

This session will review the relevant bills impacting tribes and tribal businesses. We’ll discuss the bills that passed during the 2020 legislative session, the ones that didn’t, and which ones we are likely see again in the future.

Christine M. Masse – Miller Nash Graham & Dunn LLP, Seattle
