Position Description: Summer Associate

Lochen Law Offices is seeking candidates for a Summer Associate position. The position is for law students who have successfully completed or are presently enrolled in Constitutional Law—Powers and Federal Indian law, and have a demonstrated interest and/or background in advocating on behalf of Indian tribes.

Project Examples

The summer associate will assist with and be exposed to legal research and writing, litigation in various jurisdictions, and more. Examples of projects and responsibilities: Tribal economic development projects; drafting/reviewing corporate bylaws, resolutions and ordinances, and related matters; researching and drafting policies and procedures for various Tribal governmental departments; researching and drafting research memos on tax issues, jurisdictional questions, and other matters that focus on representation of Indian tribes and Tribal entities.

Other subject matter may include Tribal employment law, Tribal lending questions, and more.

The summer associate will also perform other duties inherent to the position of summer associate, including basic administrative tasks, and other duties as requested.

The ideal candidate would be well-versed and particularly interested in Tribal and federal Indian law as well as corporate structuring of businesses and contract law.

Compensation and Terms of Employment

Full-time Summer associateship (32-40 hours per week; ten weeks at minimum); part-time opportunity (10-20 hours per week) available during the school year. Flexible hours and schedule. All work will be completely remotely and be deadline-driven.

Compensation starts at $35.00 per hour, paid bi-weekly based on hours worked. Benefits and overtime (40+ hours/week) are not available.

Application Deadline: March 31, 2021
