

Senior Litigation Associate experienced in Indian law issues

Lippes Mathias Wexler Friedman LLP seeks an ambitious attorney with at least six years of experience in Federal Indian Law for a position with our Indian Law Practice Team. Our team provides legal and strategic advice to American Indian tribal governments, tribal courts and other entities committed to advancing tribal sovereignty, self-determination, and economic development in Indian country. To assist with accomplishing our clients' legal, political and business goals, our attorneys work with clients to design effective legal strategies, defend tribal rights and formulate innovative approaches to transactional issues. A few of our focus areas include: cannabis, gaming, sovereignty issues and taxation.

Strong skills in communication, legal advocacy, and writing are required. Excellent academic credentials, as well as prior experience in litigation preferred. The attorney selected for this position must be a self-starter and will have the opportunity for direct client contact. Candidates must be admitted to practice in New York State.

Lippes Mathias is a growing law firm with more than 130 attorneys and 210 total employees located in seven offices (Buffalo, Albany, Jacksonville, Washington D.C., Chicago, New York City and Burlington, Ontario). We rely upon and promote teamwork among staff, paralegals and attorneys to meet the expectations of our clients. We look to hire people who are excellent at what they do and have a positive attitude of serving our clients' needs. We are a firm that values a diversity of ideas and experiences in an atmosphere that is collegial and open.
